

An endeavor by SMLR's PhD students, Jacob Barnes, Alysa Hannon, Jiyeon Park, Justin Vinton, and Phela Townsend, along with the Center for Global Work and Employment is accepting proposals for small innovation grants from PhD students pursuing research on work that includes one or more of the following dimensions and has the potential to include the others: relevance to global dynamics or systems and/or underrepresented regions/voices in labor research; interdisciplinary framing and accessible language; application to practice; and, broad relevance to the Future of Work(ers) discourse. "Our primary objective is the creation of an interdisciplinary, global forum of exchange and personal-professional connection for PhD students, with particular focus on connecting with students outside of the U.S., Canada, Europe, and Australia and/or who center non-Eurocentric voices in their research." More information can be found on the home page for The RU Global Future of Workers Grant Opportunity.

In a contract that the Center for Women and Work secured with the Asian Development Bank, Yana Rodgers co-authored an article called "Gender Differences in Access to Healthcare among the Elderly: Evidence from Southeast Asia," which shows that fewer Asian families are caring for the elderly, and especially women, as intergenerational transfers from adult children to their older parents have fallen over time. The article is coming out in the Asian Development Review this month.

Todd E. Vachon with J. Mijin Cha, Dimitris Stevis, and Vivian Price are revising their article "Green New Deal for All: Toward a Worker and Community-Led Just Transition in the US" for the journal Political Geography. The article, which draws from the research we conducted through the Just Transition Listening Project (JTLP), highlights the role of academics in community-led research and considers the prospects for intersectional, broad-based movements pursuing a Green New Deal (GND) for all. In particular, we argue that the process of the JTLP parallels the goals of the GND--intersectional efforts rooted in community knowledge for the development of a people-led GND.

Check This Out!

The Library has re-opened! Check out the SMLR Library homepage for hours, services and resources.

Asian Development Review is available electronically from 2004 to the present.

Political Geography is available through ScienceDirect from 1992 to the present.

New Books Coming Soon:

Building an inclusive organization: leveraging the power of a diverse workforce

Unbias: addressing unconscious bias at work

DISCOVER THE SMLR ARCHIVES

Look at Labor: The Story of Industrial War and Peace, by Leon Goodelman, 1940

Report on World Unity, by the CIO Delegates to the World Trade Federation of Trade Unions, Paris, 1945

"It Takes More Than Guns": a Brief History of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, by Morris Wright, 1944

JUST PUBLISHED!

Highlights of Women's Earnings in 2020

In 2020, women who were full-time wage and salary workers had median usual weekly earnings that were 82 percent of those of male full-time wage and salary workers. In 1979, the first year for which comparable earnings data are available, women's earnings were 62 percent of men's.

U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, September 2021

SUBMIT YOUR RESEARCH

Share with colleagues your current research projects. What are you working on? Anything from research in the beginning stages or ready for publication. The Carey Library Research Minute is an outlet to stay connected. If interested, please submit a short summary. Issues are published three times in the spring and fall semesters. The next issue will be published in October.

Email submissions to:
Julie Peters: jpeters@smlr.rutgers.edu