

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING & WORKER REPRESENTATION

Course Number: 37:578:560:90

Professor Carla A. Katz, Esq.
FALL 2022
carla.katz@rutgers.edu

This course will explore and analyze all aspects of unions, collective bargaining, including the legal and political environment, the participants, the process of negotiations, and the outcomes and impacts of collective bargaining. We will also discuss alternative forms of worker representation in the United States. The course is meant to be an overview of both conventional forms of union membership, negotiations, labor law, dispute resolution, and emerging representation and advocacy strategies.

Each week will focus on a key element or a particular specialized area and will run from Thursday morning until Wednesday evening. The class requires that you read and view all course materials within the assigned week. Additionally, students will participate in a required synchronous mock contract negotiation.

The course will start each week on Thursday morning. You will receive a weekly message outlining what the week ahead entails. NOTE: Syllabus subject to change.

Course Learning objectives

After this course, the student is able to:

Method of Instruction

This course is delivered online through the Learning Management System, Canvas. There will be no Face-to-Face classroom sessions. The course is delivered mostly in asynchronous mode. This means the learning activities and communication takes place outside of real-time. There is no live presentation or lecture. However, this course requires one synchronous exercise—a collective bargaining simulation—which is REQUIRED. You do not have to log in at any specific scheduled time; you may log in at your convenience. There may be times when the instructor conducts a live chat session to address questions. In that case, you will be notified in advance, so you can schedule the time.

Student Responsibilities

Online learning requires a high level of discipline, dedication, and time management skills. While online learning offers you flexibility and convenience to learn from anyplace, anytime, you are still expected to adhere to the all due dates.

You are expected to:

- Have a reliable computer, and access to the Internet
- Log in to Canvas for your course on a daily basis
- Check for any announcements, update to the syllabus, assignments, and/or discussions and respond accordingly
- Actively participate in the Discussion Forum
- Complete the assigned readings
- Complete the assigned exercises and projects
- Adhere to all due dates

In case of computer failure

Make sure you have an alternative plan to access your Canvas class in case your computer crashes (it happens). An extra computer at home, your work computer, or computer at your local library are a few alternatives. Always backup your course documents on an external device, such as, a flash drive. It is also highly recommended that you print and keep a paper copy of each week's activities, in case you lose access to the Internet.

Academic Integrity

You are responsible for understanding and following the Rutgers University Policy on Academic Integrity. Information on the policy is available here:

<http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/academic-integrity-policy/>

Some assignments will be processed through Turnitin.

Class schedule

The schedule of readings and assignments is below. I may move some topics and/or readings to adjust the emphasis as a result of the class discussion. However, exam dates and assignment deadlines should not change. You should complete all readings for each week. Your participation will be reflected in the forum discussions.

Required Books

The following two (2) books are required. The Spatz book will be posted online.

1. Roger Fisher and William Ury, Getting to Yes: Negotiating Agreement without Giving In. New York: Penguin, 1991. Widely available used. Any edition is acceptable.
2. Donald Spatz. Contract Costing for Union Negotiators (with CD). Union Communication Services, 2011. Available from Union Communication Services

All other readings will be posted on the site in the module for that week.

We will read excerpts from several other books, including:

- Harry Katz, Thomas Kochan and Alexander Colvin, An Introduction to Collective Bargaining and Labor Relations 4th Ed., abbreviated as “KKC”.
- John W. Budd Labor Relations: Striking a Balance (4th edition), abbreviated as “Budd”
- Michael R. Carrell and Christina Heavrin Labor Relations and Collective Bargaining: Public and Private Sectors, tenth edition, abbreviated as “Carrell”
- Thomas Berkeley and Arthur Colosi Collective Bargaining: How it Works and Why.

REQUIRED Bargaining Exercise: This assignment requires mandatory participation. A synchronous collective bargaining simulation in which small groups of union and management teams negotiate the terms of a new collective bargaining agreement using “The Zinnia and Service Workers Local H-56.” This exercise is accessible online. Teams for this exercise will be assigned by Prof. Katz.

Before the initial bargaining session, each team will construct a negotiation plan to be submitted to Professor Katz. Each negotiation plan should include a bargaining agenda. The bargaining agenda contains the team’s threat point (i.e., the minimum [maximum] acceptable contract changes the union [company] would accept without a strike) and also what the team reasonably hopes to settle for. Both economic and noneconomic items should be included in the agenda. Blank templates are available on the exercise’s website. Costs should be estimated for the economic items in the packages. Bargaining agendas are not binding during negotiations but are used to facilitate preparation. To help with costing various proposals, an Excel spreadsheet is available on the website. A list of sub-committee member must also be included in the negotiation plan.

Every team member should lead the team on at least one individual issue. Potential issues include wages, health insurance, retirement, notice procedures, successorship, and others.

Any pair of teams that does not complete an agreement by the end of the negotiations period will be deemed to be on strike and must write a strike paper. A full schedule and discussion regarding the process we will use for this simulation will be provided.
